Americas torch bearer

A Socorro ISD student will carry the Olympic torch part of the way through New Mexico for the Winter Olympics. Andy Bryant, a senior at Americas High School, is autistic, yet has lettered in both track and cross country. Bryant, now 20, was chosen from among 210,000 people nominated to carry the torch due to his heroism in facing special challenges. He will run one quarter of a mile with the torch on Jan. 12.

Medicaid vet housing

Texas Land Commissioner David Dewhurst has announced Texas State Veterans Homes are now admitting Medicaid-eligible veterans. Dewhurst said each of the four state veterans homes can admit up to 16 Medicaid-eligible veterans, spouses of veterans, surviving spouses of veterans, or Gold Star Parents, who need long-term care, skilled nursing. Dewhurst said each of the four state veterans homes, can house up to 160 veterans in spacious rooms. The Big Spring home, roughly equi-distant from Abilene, Lubbock, Midland, Odessa and San Angelo, serves West Texas and the Panhandle. The Bonham home, located north of Dallas near the Red River, serves North and East Texas. The Temple home, located midway between Austin and Waco, serves Central and East Texas. The Floresville home, located 30 miles from San Antonio, serves Central and South Texas. "We still have openings in all our veterans homes, but now is the time to apply for admission, because they're going to fill up fast," Dewhurst said. "I urge my fellow Texas veterans or their family members to call our toll free number at 1-800-252-VETS (8387), or visit our Web site at www.glo.state.tx.us/vlb."

San Elizario veterans to be honored Nov. 11

By Sam Sanchez Sr.
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO — The Placita of San Elizario will be the site of a ceremony honoring San Elizario Veterans on Sunday, Nov. 11, 2001.

Every year our country observes Veterans Day, inviting her citizens to honor those valiant men and women who served their country and the cause of peace as members of the Armed Forces.

This year, because our nation has suffered the effects of terrorism in a way that has left us feeling vulnerable, a special program has been added. The ceremony starts at 11 a.m. at the San Elizario cemetery to honor those who have gone before us, which includes members of the 1870's Frontier Battalion.

Benjamin Sanchez will be master of ceremonies, with guest speakers Ramon Holguin, Judge Ruben Lujan, and County Commissioner Miguel A. Teran.

The ceremony moves on to the Placita in front of the San Elizario Church and a tour of the Los Portales building that houses the San Elizario Veterans Memorial Museum and the history of San Elizario exhibits. The ceremony culminates with a candlelight vigil at 5:45 p.m. followed by a fireworks display provided by Star Fireworks.

Special performances will be given by the San Elizario High School Band and the Sambrano and Alarcon Cheerleaders. The Young Marines of El Paso "E" Company - Jr. Devil Dogs will serve as Color Guard.

There is a need to assure ourselves of our nation's ability to combat terroristic attacks and other threats against our way of life. With that in mind, the community of San Elizario has agreed to come together on this special day to honor our veterans, to foster the spirit of patriotism, and to demonstrate support for our government. An invitation is extended to all to join us on this day in San Elizario.

Canutillo NJROTC maintains long tradition of community service

UPPER VALLEY — Whenever there are community service projects to be done, everyone can count on Canutillo High School Naval Junior ROTC cadets to lend a helping hand.

"Student cadets have been helping the Canutillo community with different projects for as long as I have been here," said Captain Charles Young, who has been in charge of CHS's military science program for the past 20 years.

Painting houses for senior citizens, weather-stripping mobile homes for needy families, and cleaning the local cemetery are some of the services that the cadets have participated in recently.

"I am willing to give some of my time when someone needs help in my community, because It makes me feel good when I help out," said Rick Calzadias, Canutillo High School senior and student company commander.

"Performing services for our community is a very important thing to do, and as young persons we must be willing to help out," asserted Karla Hernandez, Canutillo High School senior and operations officer.

Canutillo High School has about 80 students enrolled in the NJROTC program this semester. Helping Captain Young with the classes is Petty Officer First Class Pete Soto, who joined the NJROTC staff last year.

Cadets earn credit for the program's community service component and bring recognition to Canutillo, stated Young. Most projects are completed during the weekend.

Clint Jr. High named as a top Texas school

CLINT — Deep in the rural valley of East El Paso County, past snow-white cotton fields, stands the mother school of the Clint Independent School District — Clint Jr. High.

Rich in history, the school building — located at 13100 Alameda Ave. — served as the first high school in the county's first independent school district, established in 1929.

Today, Clint Jr. High School, its administration, teachers and students have proven that it has stood the test of time. In fact, there is so much structure and substance to the school that it has been rated among the best of the best in Texas.

The November edition of Texas Monthly magazine named the school one of six in El Paso County that are among the state's 120 top-performing campuses.

The edition features the results of a study rating more than 5,400 schools in the state.

"We are very pleased but not totally surprised," said Olivia Campos, Clint ISD's Assistant Superintendent of Research, Evaluation, Accountability and Administration. "Our teachers and students are doing a remarkable job at moving to the next level.

The study published in the magazine was conducted by Just for the Kids, a nonprofit education research organization based in Austin. The group gathered basic TAAS data for the elementary and middle schools. End-of-course exams and promotion percentages were used to research high schools

"We have observed the teaching and learning and feel confident that all our campuses are headed in the right direction," Campos said. "Just for the Kids encourages us all to look at our achievement from a different perspective and to really believe that all children can achieve."

Other schools named among the best in the state include Rio Bravo Middle, Magoffin Middle, Bel Air High, Ysleta High and Americas High.

"The article in Texas Monthly is evidence that schools must do more than just prepare students for the TAAS," Holly Fields, CJHS principal, said. "Texas Monthly and Just for the Kids has brought to the attention of the public that teachers must ensure that every child learns regardless of the challenges that the child brings to school with him.

"The teachers and staff at CJHS are doing just that," she said. "The proficiency measure as mentioned in the article is a much better indicator of learning rather than just a passing TAAS score. This proficiency standard is also helping us to make decisions to

The stars in our lives

The best things in life are nearest: Breath in your nostrils, light in your eyes, flowers at your feet, duties at your hand, the path of right just before you. Then do not grasp at the stars, but do life's plain, common work as it comes, certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things in life.

— Robert Louis Stevenson

HORIZON — I just love that quote. It defines what we aren't, what we should be, what would make us so much happier. It defines the stars for which we should grasp, and don't. So lately I've been trying to count some of the stars in my life.

I'm taking out the trash, as common work as you can get, and here's my next door neighbor in her front yard hanging up her American flag. A beautiful, white-haired lady, she's crying because she began her life in the throes of war and doesn't want to end it that way. She's a grandmother, she has a beautiful grandson...She knows all the rules for displaying the flag, and follows them diligently.

I was raised on fiddle and guitar music, the best in the world, the kind that comes from the ear, memory, heart and gut. When I enrolled my two littlest in piano they didn't start learning that way. Over the last several years their little heads have become filled with more classical music knowledge than I will ever know. Yet we still enjoy the music with the same gusto as if it were a Saturday night country dance.

When somebody is practicing Bach's "Rage Over the Last Penny" there will likely be somebody else whistling along and dancing around in the kitchen. When somebody hits a sour note there will be howls and groans from all over the house, because we are all listening.

My 11-year-old rolls her eyes heavenward and bemoans that "everybody is a comedian."

The aim and range of our newspaper delivery person's arm improves tremendously. For over a week the paper — ordinarily found curbside or on the sidewalk — miraculously begins to appear on the mat in front of our door.

One morning I happen to notice out the window that the improved service isn't our delivery man at all. It is a nice kid who passes by our house on his way to Carroll T. Welch Middle School. He stops and flirts with our boxer through the gate as she yowls with delight, tosses the paper onto the front mat, and walks happily away munching on a few pecans our tree has tossed onto the sidewalk.

Now there's a star.

We've got these huge dogs in the backyard that make it impossible to have grass or any kind of landscape. They are too big to put in a dog run, so now we have a "people run" — a strip of yard extending from the back door to the front of the workshop, enclosing the back porch, a little patch of grass, a deck and my clothesline. We even have people over, sitting comfortably out back without being assaulted by our passionate security guards.

As I hang out clothes in the pleasant West Texas breeze, comfortable in the knowledge that they won't be decorated with slobber and tufts of unwanted dog fuzz, I know my husband is a star.

gry car dealerships should make it easy to buy a van, right? Wrong. There is this wonderful deal offered at a westside Dodge dealership. One salesman says there's some interest in it by another party but that no money had changed hands and invites us over. So we drive on over with the intent to purchase. Incredibly, another salesman leaves us cooling our heels in the parking lot for over 15 minutes before returning with the simple statement that a deal is working with someone in Albuquerque — no money down — but he won't even unlock the door to let us look inside. Somebody is on the way to pay cash right now he says.

Several days later the van is still there, and though the dealership knows how to contact us, nobody calls.

Now I don't know about you, but I take that as a definite signal that van isn't for us.

Sometimes the stars that shine brightest in our favor are those we never get to touch.

Celebrate our freedom on this Veterans' Day

This Sunday, Americans everywhere will celebrate Veterans' Day.

Nov. 11 has always been a day to honor the living and deceased veterans of our armed services. But my heart tells me that this Veterans' Day will carry special significance.

As America continues the war on terrorism, we will remember the brave soldiers who died for our freedom. We will remember the men and women of our armed forces who secured the liberties we enjoy today. Most importantly we will remember the peace, freedom and democracy our military has fought to fasten for more than 225 years.

Veterans' Day commemorates the Nov. 11, 1918 armistice, which ended World War I. Originally called Armistice Day, President Eisenhower changed the name to Veterans' Day in 1954. The new name was meant to honor those who have served America in all wars and conflicts. Decades later, the spirit of Nov. 11 remains strong.

The legacy of America's veterans is the highest example of patriotism. These men and women are true leaders who have been a shining example of responsibility, accountability and loyalty. Those who serve in America's armed forces are our nation's guardians. They protect and defend the sacred rights entrusted to us by the Constitution.

For hundreds of years, the men and women of our military have left their families and friends to fight for our freedom and our flag. They make great sacrifices to protect our American way of life. These sacrifices and examples of bravery continue today as we fight the malicious forces of terrorism.

This year, as we celebrate Veterans' Day, let's reflect on the many great Americans who wore the uniform and made our country safe and strong. Veterans' Day is reserved for reflection upon and respect for our nation's most enduring heroes. Their service will never be forgotten. Their legacy will endure forever.

As the young wife of a Desert Storm veteran wrote in a letter to TIME magazine, "We would not be the land of the free if we were not also the home of the brave." That says it all.

Reyes Reports

By U.S. Rep. Silvestre Reyes

The Aviation Security Act is needed to protect our country

Last week, the U.S. House of Representatives defeated the Oberstar-Ganske Aviation Security Act, a measure which would improve airline security by placing federal law enforcement agents in charge of securing our nation's airports and airplanes. Unfortunately, this measure was defeated in favor of weaker legislation that continues with the current system of private out-sourcing for aviation security.

I am disappointed that the House was unable to come together and pass this important piece of legislation. I strongly believe that it is the federal government's responsibility to protect our country, especially during a time of war. Security at our nation's airports is now a major part of our national defense and it should no longer be left to only the private sector.

The Oberstar-Ganske Aviation Security Bill is identical to S. 1447, the Aviation Security Act, which passed the Senate by 100-0 on Oct. 11. This legislation places responsibility for aviation security with the federal government. The bill will allow the Federal government to assume full responsibility of airport security screening with a federal law enforcement presence at every check point including screening and checking all baggage and individuals; enable the Department of Justice to deploy Federal Air Marshals on board every flight; enhance cockpit security and prevents entry into the flight deck; require new anti-hijacking training for airline crews; and requires individuals seeking flight instruction to submit to a background check and an Immigration and Naturalization Service review for foreign students.

The aviation security bill that did pass the U.S. House of Representatives last week, which was supported by President Bush, is commendable, but it does not go far enough. Allowing the continued private contracting of screening services perpetuates the current system under which screeners are paid near minimum wage resulting in an average employee turnover rate of more than 120 percent nationally and more than 400 percent at some airports.

We would never consider contracting out the duties of the U.S. Customs Service, Border Patrol or Capitol Police, and it makes no sense to do so with airport screeners. After all, these screeners serve as the front line of defense in aviation security. If federalized, screeners should be paid salaries commensurate with the law enforcement responsibilities of screening, which involves not only the ability to read X-rays but the ability to access individuals and conduct more thorough inspections in certain circumstances. Only through a uniform national system with professional federal screeners can U.S. travelers be sure they are being protected.

The bottom line is that airport security should be a law enforcement function, not a minimum wage function. We need to professionalize this important workforce now. We need to recognize the fact that airline screeners are our first line of defense and treat this function as an important component of national security.

Until we ease people's air safety concerns, cities across the country will continue to feel the economic squeeze of declining tourism and business travel. I hope that we will have an opportunity to fix this legislation in conference with the Senate and provide all Americans with the sense of security and peace of mind that they deserve.

Ghosts in the yard

And then there were none. It was the slow march of time that did it. All perfectly normal and natural, but we looked around one day and realized we had no dogs in the yard.

We had known the day was coming. Both of Pardner's dogs, Grace and her son Walter, were well into their 'teens and really slowing down. Pepper, my ditsy Dalmatian, at nine years old was in full late maturity, getting older but no wiser.

We had discussed their someday successors, and that we wouldn't get a young dog until the old ones were gone. That way, bad habits wouldn't be passed along, and we could shape a pup's behavior to our specifications, free of the older dogs' influence.

Walter went first, dying the way he had lived — on his own terms and in his own time. Walter was a chronic outdoorsman, a free spirit who would not be restrained. He was a sweet dog with us, as long as we didn't put a leash on him or doctor him. Then he would panic and try his serious best to hurt us. Foaming and snarling, he would try to climb up the leash, going for the throat.

Walter was the original homebody; he didn't see any point in traveling. We had often said that if for some reason we had to take him off the ranch, we could do it. Probably. Given enough time and thick welding gauntlets, we could muzzle him with duct tape and immobilize him with pigging strings. We never had to put him through that trauma though.

We knew it was Walter's time when he refused food and water and started disappearing into the pasture after sundown to hide out. But he just couldn't manage it on his own. In the heat of mid-day, he'd trudge back to the house, only to repeat the process again that night. When he couldn't get up, Pardner granted him his last wish.

Grace's time came about six months later. She was so crippled in her hips that it was painful to watch her get up in the morning. We had kept her going for better than a year on daily arthritis pills and a soft bed in the house on cold nights. Then she started having trouble relieving herself. One pretty morning she gave me a level look of pain, telling me it was well past time.

Just the opposite of Walter, Grace loved to ride in the car. She enjoyed the drive, greeted the staff at the vet's with her normal calm arrogance, and welcomed the needle that took away her pain.

Pepper too went the way she lived. She was a kind, generous dog, but never healthy. Her only reliable "trick" was to take an expensive pill willingly. I guess it was the constant repetition that did it. She was nervy and given to eating rocks. At nine, her teeth were almost worn away, and we knew that her time was getting short.

Before dawn one morning, I found her laying in the yard. There was no sign of distress or snake bite; it looked like she had just dropped in mid-stride. Her final kindness to me was that I didn't have to make that decision, "Okay, old girl. Today's your day."

Now when we walk through the gate, we still expect to be mobbed by three ecstatic dogs, healthy and in their prime. We brace ourselves so they don't clip our legs out from under us.

It's a good thing, too, because it is easy to trip over a wiggling puppy.

We know the old dogs would approve.

San Elizario ISD tackles a number of student health and safety issues

By Don Woodyard
Courier Staff Writer

SAN ELIZARIO — The board of trustees of San Elizario Independent School District took action at its Oct. 10 meeting to ensure the safety of students walking to Borrego Elementary along Chicken Ranch Road.

On recommendation of the administration, trustees approved having a school monitor posted at a section of Chicken Ranch where it narrows crossing a canal to protect students from traffic. This would, thereby, eliminate the need for a bus to transport these children who live close to Borrego. Superintendent Mike Quatrini said the district is looking into building a walkway across the bridge to further safeguard students. A bridge is also under consideration.

Quatrini brought up another student safety concern. He cited an increase in headaches and nosebleeds brought on, apparently, by crop dusting in the area. He said he had received responses from officials, but no answers. The superintendent is hoping that arrangements can be made for crop dusting on weekends or after school when students aren’t in the area. He speculated that the problems might be caused by more frequent flights by the planes or from the use of a different chemical in the application.

Board members got a look at and approved a color scheme for the new administration building presented by Geoffrey Wright of the Wright & Dalbin architectural firm. The new building will be two-tone brown with light green peaked roofs and blue-tinted windows.

Assistant superintendent Maria Luisa Niestas reported on and compared the new bilingual immersion program that replaced the traditional bilingual program in the spring of 1997. The purpose of the immersion program, with an emphasis on English in the classroom, was to make students more successful in an all-English academic program while strengthening Spanish skills, Niestas said. She said 250 students take part in the program that is allocated more than $38,000 for salaries, professional development and supplies.

Damaged floor tile in Borrego Elementary, also a topic of discussion at last month’s meeting, will be replaced using IFA (Instructional Facilities Allotment) funds, said facilities director Tury Morales. A coating that caused an adverse chemical reaction had damaged the tile.

Art Esparza, a technology technician at the middle school, was recognized as Employee of the Month. Olga Mendoza, a bilingual kindergarten teacher at Loya Primary, was named Teacher of the Month.

Este proyecto abarca dentro una área de 30 millas cuadradas localizado 2 millas al Este del Loop 375 en la intersección Montwood/Zaragosa. El proyecto de 7.8 millas de línea conectará a la subestación Montwood con la subestación Coyote de EPE.

EPE tiene tres rutas, una de preferencia ya dos alternativas, las cuales se describen a continuación. Se requiere adquisición de derecho de paso.

Ruta Principal (G)

La ruta principal da principio en la subestación Montwood ubicada en la esquina Noroeste de la Sección 2, Block 79, Township 3 con camino hacia el Este, paralela con la línea Norte de la Sección 2, Block 79, Township 3 y caminos existentes con una distancia de aproximadamente 4 millas hacia el lugar de la futura subestación en la calle Ascencion. A partir de este punto, la línea corre hacia el Norte y paralela con la calle Ascencion a una distancia de aproximadamente 1.2 millas, continuando hacia el oeste a lo largo de la línea hacia el sur de la Sección 17, Block 78, Township 2 a una distancia de aproximadamente 0.7 millas. Ruta Alternativa (F) hacia el Norte a lo largo de la calle Krag hacia la Subestación Coyote ubicada en la esquina Noroeste de las calles Marvin y Krag en la Sección 5, Block 78, Township 2.

Ruta Alternativa (H)

Comenzando en la subestación Montwood ubicada en la esquina Noroeste de la Sección 2, Block 79, Township 3, la ruta se dirige hacia el este paralela con la línea Norte de la Sección 2, Block 79, Township 3 y caminos existentes a una distancia de aproximadamente 4 millas hacia al lugar de la futura subestación en la calle Ascencion. A partir de este punto, la línea se dirige hacia el Norte y paralela con la calle Ascencion a una distancia de aproximadamente 1.6 millas, y luego hacia el Oeste a una distancia de aproximadamente 0.7 millas. A partir de este punto la línea se dirige hacia el Norte a una distancia de aproximadamente 0.6 millas pasando por un terreno baldío y continuando a una distancia de 1 milla a lo largo de la calle Krag hacia la Subestación Coyote ubicada en la esquina Noroeste de las calles Marvin y Krag en la Sección 5, Block 78, Township 2.

Character education in San Elizario reaps reward for both giver and recipient

By Philip Cortez
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO — Whether it's by cheering at a football game, performing in a play or judging at an elementary science fair, the students at San Elizario High School serve as role models for the younger students in the San Elizario ISD.

It's not everyday that the roles get to be reversed, where the younger students get an opportunity to help the "big kids."

So when presented with the opportunity, the students at Lorenzo G. Alarcón Elementary School came through in full force, raising $822.60 for the Tri-Elementary Good Character Scholarship, given to a graduating senior looking to further his or her education.

Raising the money was not an easy task. The students began selling "spirit strips" at a dime each on Sept. 10, and the result of their work gave the campus the longest chain made among the three elementary schools in the school district.

The chain was proudly displayed at the Character Education Pep Rally in October, and considering that it almost wrapped around the football field twice, it's no wonder that the students were able to not only raise that much money, but win the district Spirit of Character Award, according to Norma deKoatz, counselor at the school.

The Spirit of Character Award is intended to become a traveling trophy for which the student bodies of Alfonso Borrego Sr. Elementary, Sambrano Elementary and Lorenzo G. Alarcón Elementary will compete annually.

campus raised $269 for the scholarship fund and donated another $50 to the Red Cross, as did students from Sambrano Elementary.

"The whole idea was to get the kids to give to others," deKoatz said. "This was the citizenship component to Character Education."

This is the first year that the entire San Elizario school district has implemented Character Education. Teachers are able to include some aspect of Character Education in their classrooms and in their lesson planning.

In all, deKoatz said, there are six pillars to Character Education and these are used to determine who will receive the scholarship: responsibility (gpa), trust (letter of recommendation), citizenship (volunteer civic hours), caring (volunteer private hours), fairness (ex-elementary student receives the award) and respect (letter of recommendation).

be better prepared for the new TAKS test.

Administrators, however, aren't the only ones proud and pleased. Stephanie Delgado, a sixth-grader at Clint Junior High, said she's excited for the middle school and glad to be one of its students.

"The teachers are cool here," she said. "And they really listen to us and help us learn."

The published report also reviewed 169 schools in the county giving each a rating of one to five stars — five being the best. Of those reviewed, only eight received one star and 56 received five.

Just for the Kids separated Texas schools into four socioeconomic groups and then ranked the schools using academic standards. A school with five stars ranked in the top 20 percent of its economic group. A school with one star ranked among the bottom 20 percent.

Montana Vista Elementary, Red Sands Elementary, East Montana Middle and Clint Jr. High all received five star ratings. CJHS, however, was the only one to received a Texas Top School rating. Desert Hills Elementary and CT Welch Middle received four stars, Clint High School received three stars and William D. Surratt received two stars.

World Series was a study in last minute heroics

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

As a member of this planet I’ve come to expect certain things to happen everyday without exception.

I know the sun will rise every time I wake up in the morning. I know that Rap music won’t sound any better to me today than it did yesterday and I know that when Yankees’ manager Joe Torre gives the ball to Mariano Rivera with the lead in the ninth inning, the Yankees win.

Well, I used to believe in the Tooth Fairy, too.

Rivera picked the wrong time to prove he was human last Sunday as he allowed the Arizona Diamondbacks to light him up in the bottom of the ninth inning and cost the Yankees their fourth consecutive baseball title.

The D-Backs won 3-2 on Luis Gonzalez’ bloop single with the bases loaded.

Anyway, how about that World Series. This one wasn’t the prettiest series of them all but as far as late inning heroics, there has never been any better. Out of the seven games played, three of them were won by the team that was losing going into the bottom of the ninth.

That kind of thing happens rarely during the regular season.

Sunday nights’ seventh game was one for the history books. Though it was tough for me to watch the Yankees’ reign come to an end, I was happy that the game of baseball provided Americans with a much-needed diversion from the horrific acts of last month.

Baseball is a game all of us can identify with. Which one of us hasn’t, at one time, swung at strike three, hit that clutch hit or made that one unbelievable catch — even as a child — that we still remember to this day.

Baseball isn’t the fastest game in the world and it isn’t filled with world-class athletes but it is a simpler game that takes us all back to a simpler time. A simpler time that we yearn for now more than we have in quite some time.

Oh, there are also two other lesser known winners and losers of the World Series.

Byung-Hyun Kim was the big winner because he was let off the hook after the Diamondbacks came back to win the series. The 22-year-old Kim, who gave up two game-tying homers that eventually led to two losses, would have been remembered forever in World Series lore with the likes of Mitch Williams and Bill Buckner.

A big loser on Sunday night were the poor Emmy Awards. The TV awards show finally aired last Sunday, opposite the big game, after being postponed twice because of the events of Sept. 11 and the beginning of the United States’ invasion of Afghanistan.

Going head-to-head against the World Series cost the show many viewers and ratings points. But who cares? Baseball is much more credible than Geraldo Rivera and Rosie O’Donnell.

What a game

Were you one of the fortunate fans who attended last Friday’s mammoth football contest between the Franklin Cougars and the Andress Eagles?

All the football experts around the city thought this one could be one for the ages and boy, were they right on. Both teams came into the game with identical 3-0 District 1-5A records and each team was ranked at the top of all the local polls.

With the game close throughout, both teams scored touchdowns in the game’s final two minutes to force an overtime period as the game ended in regulation tied 21-21. After a scoreless first overtime, Franklin scored a touchdown to take a 28-21 lead during the second overtime.

With Andress having to score a touchdown to force a third overtime. Their sensational quarterback Jamar Ransom ran it in from 14 yards out to cut Franklin’s lead to 28-27. All Andress had to do was kick the game-tying extra point.

The Cougars blocked the try and Franklin’s Chris Marrow picked up the ball and raced 90 yards in the other direction for two points and a final 30-27 win.

I’ve covered high school football for many years now and I don’t remember seeing any better game than this one.

It’s too bad that one team had to lose a game like that one but there is still some good news for Andress, the playoffs are just around the corner and the Eagles will have a chance to take out their frustrations on some poor out-of-town team.

EAST EL PASO COUNTY — Clint High School Lions Marching Band will make their final performance of the season this Friday evening after a very successful year. The band will perform during the game against the Canutillo Eagles at 7 p.m. in Canutillo.

Perfecting their Musica Fuerte! El Cumbanchero performance, the band took a Division I rating at the Socorro ISD Marchfest on Oct. 9.

The band also won the honor to represent the El Paso area by competing and receiving a Division I rating in the UIL Region 22 Marching Contest last month, and on Oct. 26 won 11th place in the Area Marching Contest in Odessa. The Mountain View Lobos Band and the El Paso High Tigers Band also represented El Paso.

The Lions Band is directed by Orlando Calderon, assisted by Carmen Holbrook and Ignacio Estorga. Drum Majors are Heather Black and Laura Valverde. A Lions Band spokesman said the group would like to thank all of their sponsors who have generously supported them this year.

Light up your life

By Don Flood

So you've had your Belly Light for a while now, and it's not quite the attention-getter it used to be.

(A Belly Light, for the fashion-challenged, is an accessory that allows you to light up and draw attention to your bellybutton. It is considered suitable for all occasions, though some of the older Supreme Court justices still refrain from wearing them while hearing a case.)

Good news!

Just in time for the holiday season, the famous blinking fashion accessory is now available for all parts of the body!

It's called, appropriately enough, the Body Light, and you can attach it anywhere.

Humdrum hair? Add a Body Light!

Tired-looking tongue? Light it up!

According to the inventor, Gary Kellman, "Body Lights are a natural product extension of the Belly Lights."

Absolutely, and that's what makes Kellman an inventor in the tradition of Thomas Edison, Alexander Graham Bell and that Frisbee dude.

As Kellman said, "We had many of our customers asking if we could design more fun, flashing fashion for all parts of the body."

I know I have!

(A note from the Legal Adviser: Check with the authorities on what body parts you're allowed to flash in your local area.)

But while I am a firm believer in Progress, especially when it comes to better lighting for body parts, I have found my reaction somewhat subdued.

Perhaps it's because I realize now that I gave up on my dreams a long, long time ago.

As a boy, I thought being an inventor was a pretty cool way to make a living, and I honestly believe I would have made an outstanding inventor but for two minor issues: I had no idea what to invent and no skill at making anything, assuming I had come up with an idea in the first place.

Otherwise, I had what it takes: a heartfelt desire to help mankind — at least the portion willing to buy my inventions — and a keen interest in sitting back and collecting patent royalties.

Unfortunately, a cruel guidance counselor steered me away from inventing and suggested I focus on a "more realistic" career goal, such as busing tables.

(To my guidance counselor's credit, clearing tables proved to be an effective steppingstone to a career in journalism.)

But Body Lights are just the beginning.

Another inventor, Carl VanderSchuit, has invented Litecubes, a plastic ice cube with a light inside!

Plop one in your drink and add a whole new measure of fun to your favorite holiday beverage.

Interestingly enough, Leonardo da Vinci left detailed drawings for a prototype of a plastic, lighted ice cube, but sadly, no models are known to exist. It's possible he never built one.

The great Thomas Edison also tackled the problem but found the plastic cubes made his gin and tonic taste funny.

Not that his research was wasted. Industrial historians credit his gin and tonics with inspiring Edison to invent Twister, considered by many to be the most important party game of the Second Millennium.

It's not like he invented the Belly Light, but he did OK.

Social Security: Q & A

by Ray Vigil

Q. We recently adopted an infant from Vietnam. She's a U.S. citizen, but her Social Security record doesn't show it. How can I establish that she's a citizen with Social Security?

A. Children born in other countries but adopted by U.S. citizens are automatically citizens, thanks to the Child Citizenship Act of 2000. We'll issue numbers to them using the documents provided by Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), but to show them as citizens, you'll have to apply for a Certificate of Citizenship from INS or a U.S. passport from the Department of State. Bring the certificate or passport in and we'll show the children as citizens. For more information, visit: www.ssa.gov/immigration/children.htm, call us at 1-800-772-1213, or visit your local Social Security office.

Q. I recently moved to El Paso and I need to apply for a replacement social security card as I lost mine. Can you tell me what documents I need and where the office located.

A. We have two social security offices in El Paso, Texas. You can visit the office located at 11111 Gateway West, El Paso, Texas 79935 or the one located at 700 E. San Antonio, El Paso, Texas 79901. If you were born in the United States, all you need is a current identification card such as a drivers license. If you were born outside the United States, you must provide proof of your residence status such as your naturalization certificate or alien registration card.

Q. My father died in late December. I received a letter from Social Security saying that I must return his benefit for December, even though he was alive through most of the month. Why?

A. Social Security benefits are not pro-rated. To be entitled to a Social Security benefit payment for a given month, the person must be alive the entire month. No benefit is payable for the month of death. On the other hand, when people start receiving Social Security, they get a benefit for the first month they're eligible, even if they don't meet all the eligibility factors until late in the month.

Q. I got my Social Security Statement in the mail and noticed that part of my social Security number is missing. Is this a mistake?

A. No, it's our way of protecting you from identity theft. We've dropped the first five digits of your number from the Statement so that if it is ever lost or stolen, no one else will be able to use it. Armed with your Social Security number and birth date, a criminal can steal your identity, open bank accounts and get credit cards. Your number is still nine digits — but if it falls into the wrong hands, they'll only have four of them!

For more information visit your local Social Security office, see www.ssa.gov or call us at 1-800-772-1213. If you have any questions that you would like to have answered, please mail them to the Social Security Office, 11111 Gateway West, Attn: Ray Vigil, El Paso, Texas 79935
