Free holiday movies

One way to keep warm at this year's third annual WinterFest – enjoy the free holiday movies at the Plaza Theatre. Beloved classics It's a Wonderful Life and Miracle on 34th Street will be shown along with modern favorites such as Elf and Frozen, over five Sundays beginning November 18 and ending January 6. The series opens with Elf, starring Will Farrell, at 3 p.m. Sunday, November 18, followed by a double bill of the 1966 TV special How the Grinch Stole Christmas! and Robert Zemeckis' animated The Polar Express, starting at 3 p.m. Sunday, November 25. The movies continue two weeks later with 1947's Miracle on 34th Street, starring then child-actor Natalie Wood, at 3:30 pm Sunday, December 9, followed by a double bill of 1983's A Christmas Story at 1 p.m. and Jimmy Stewart in It's a Wonderful Life at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, December 16. The series concludes with two wintry titles, Disney's Frozen at 1 p.m. and Ice Age at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, January 6, the last day of WinterFest. In true Plaza Classic style, organists Ken Fedorick, Richard Garven and Laurie Koval will perform on the Plaza Theatre's original, restored Wyler Mighty Wurlitzer Pipe Organ before each movie. WinterFest, which includes ice skating in Arts Festival Plaza, runs November 17 through January 6. The 12th annual Plaza Classic Film Festival will be August 1-11, 2019. ## Over 200,000 people in El Paso County cast their mid-term vote

By Alfredo Vasquez
Special to the Courier

EL PASO COUNTY – A preliminary summary report of the recent November general election shows that of the 457,151 registered voters in El Paso County 203,157 (44.44%) actually voted. The unofficial report, which is currently posted on the El Paso County Elections Department's webpage, highlights the apparent winners of the various races and the outcome of certain propositions.

The final results of races in the county's outlying communities of Canutillo, Clint, and Fabens as well as in some statewide contests that will impact all West Texas residents were made available by the county's elections office a few hours after polling places closed.

Starting with Canutillo Independent School District, eight candidates vied for one of three positions as at-large board members. The total number of votes was 14,559. The top three vote getters were Mary Yglesias with 2,422 votes (16.64%); Laure Searls with 2,407 (16.53%); and Sal Payan with 2,046 (14.05%).

Publisher's note: This story focuses on El Paso voting. In the statewide elections an asterisk is by the winner's name. Democrats were favored by large margins in El Paso, but not statewide. The voting spread across Texas was anywhere from five to 13 points in major races. Straight party voting in El Paso: DEM, 74.75%; REP, 24.36%; and LIB, 0.90%. Not all races are reflected in this story.

In the Clint ISD board of trustees election, 6,326 votes were cast. Winning a place on the board were: for district at-large- Arleen Parada (59.14%) over Patsy Franco (40.86%); in District 2 Jim Pendell (38.93%) beat Jennifer Ivey (33.83%) and Roberto 'Bobby' Lara (27.24%). In Clint ISD District 4, Arturo 'Rocky' Cruz garnered 97% of the vote.

Also Clint ISD's tax ratification proposition was approved by voters with 3,667 votes (58.09%) for the measure and 2,646 (41.91%) votes against it.

The Town of Clint mayoral race saw 395 residents cast votes. Receiving the most votes was Dora H. Aguirre with 188 votes (47.59%). Steven T. Cheatum Sr. got 150 votes (37.97%), and Addam Hernandez got 57 votes (14.43%). Clint's Alderman-at-large office will be filled by Sandra Hernandez.

Fabens ISD also held board of trustees elections for the District-at-large, Place II, and Place IV seats. Of the 1,331 votes cast, the District-at-large post will be filled by Rosamaria Gallo, who received 67.77% of the votes and L. Anthony Vernium got 32.23% of the votes. In the Place

THE RACE THAT CAUGHT FIRE

Beto O'Rourke (D), left, and Ted Cruz (R) lit up the 2018 mid-term elections in Texas and nationwide. Their stark political differences along with O'Rourke's youth and energy sparked many young and older Texans to go to the polls. O'Rourke took El Paso in a landslide – attracting almost 75% of vote – but did not carry Texas.

II race, Benjamin 'Ben' Morales earned 50.34% of the votes and Viola Hernandez received 49.66% of the votes. Place IV will be represented by Gregg Spence.

The Fabens ISD tax ratification proposition barely passed with 662 votes (51.92%) for and 613 votes (48.08%) against.

In the Lower Valley Water District contest for the Place 2 slot, Rod Chavez got 3,852 (46.30%) of the 8,320 votes counted; David T. Garcia got 2,406 (28.92%) and Alfonso V. Gutierrez received 2,062 votes (24.78%).

In the U.S. Senate contest between Republican Ted Cruz* and Democrat Beto O'Rourke, El Paso County voters overwhelmingly pick O'Rourke by nearly a 75% to 25% margin. In the U.S. Representative District 16 race, Veronica Escobar won with 68.30% of the vote, Rick Seeberger got 27%, and Ben Mendoza got 4.5%. In the U.S. Representative District 23 race, El Paso County voters went heavily for Gina Ortiz Jones, who received 78.58% of the votes compared to Will Hurd's 18.95% showing. This race has not yet been decided.

Local voters also favored Lupe Valdez (66.86%) over incumbent Greg Abbott* (31.30%) for governor. Abbott won re-election in the State

In the Lieutenant Governor's race, El Paso County sided with Democrat Mike Collier giving him 68.46% of the votes and the Republican Dan Patrick* with 28.53%. For attorney general, El Paso County voters supported Democrat Justin Nelson by a 69.41% to Republican Ken Paxton's* 27.14% count.

In the Commissioner of General Land Office, El Paso

Gov. Greg Abbott (R) received just 31.3% of the vote in El Paso but carried Texas with 58.8% of the total vote to retain his office.

100th anniversary of the end of World War I marked

This past weekend’s salute to soldiers has special meaning as we celebrate the Marine Corps’ birthday, Veterans Day and the 100th anniversary of the end of the War to end all Wars.

On Saturday, November 10th we marked the 243rd anniversary of the establishment of the U.S. Marine Corps. On Sunday, November 11th we celebrated the 99th Veterans’ Day, which was originally called Armistice Day to commemorate the end of World War I. The so-called Great War came to an end when an armistice was declared 100 years ago at 11 AM on the eleventh day in the eleventh month of 1918.

This year, President Trump has declared the whole month of November as National Veterans and Military Families Month. In a proclamation issued by the White House, Mr. Trump urged “all communities, all sectors of society, and all Americans to acknowledge and honor the service, sacrifices, and contributions of veterans and military families for what they have done and for what they do every day to support our great nation.”

And, in a statement issued prior to the weekend,by the Association of Mature American Citizens, AMAC president Dan Weber urged “all Americans to make a special effort this weekend to remember all those that fought in wars past and present – your friends and family members who served and, of course, those who gave their lives for us. We honor those valiant soldiers, sailors and airmen who risked and lost their lives protecting their homeland. We should also take the time to remember not just those who fought our wars but all those who lost their lives in wars – the innocent civilians who were the victims of conflict.”

It wasn’t until nearly eight years after the armistice between Germany and the Allies, that on June 4, 1926 the U.S. Congress officially recognized the end of World War I when it passed a resolution that begins with these words: “the 11th of November 1918, marked the cessation of the most destructive, sanguinary, and far reaching war in human annals and the resumption by the people of the United States of peaceful relations with other nations, which we hope may never again be severed.”

Although the U.S. was late entering World War I, American bomber pilots were quick very early in the war to join in battle. So many of them “enlisted” that a separate unit of the French Air Service called the Lafayette Escadrille was created for U.S. flyers. It was named in honor of the Marquis de Lafayette, a passionate supported the American Revolution who was given the rank of major general by the Continental Congress.

The red poppy became a symbol of peace and Armistice Day, after Treaty of Versailles was signed on November 11, 1918. Wearing the poppy flower quickly became a way of publicly acknowledging the horrors of that war and the sacrifices that were made.

Some still wear the poppy. Fewer of us can remember the poem that spawned the symbol—a mournful lament written by John McCrae, a Canadian soldier, in May of 1915 at the height of World War I.

There were parades, ceremonies and observances throughout the U.S. and Canada underscoring the significance of the armistice. In the U.K. as many as 5,000 church bells throughout the Cities wiped out or drastically

Not that anything is easy in this area. The hard core of the homeless population is cut off from human relationships and

One of the advantages of modern society is that people don't have to live in public, or in squalor. That it is widely accepted in some of our greatest cities is an outrage of our age. It is deeply harmful to our civic life, and does no favors for the men and women living in parks and highway underpasses.

The dying business

Death is big business in Japan and the competition is fierce.

The population over there is aging at a quickening pace, and so is the demand for funerals and funeral services. In fact, innovative Japanese entrepreneurs have come up with new ways to cash in on that demand. Take the funeral parlor that has begun offering drive-thru funerals. Meanwhile, the frenzy to cash in on the business of dying caused quite a stir not long ago when Amazon began offering a rent-a-monk service and a competitor began offering the services of a robotic “monk.” Who was it that said, dying is easy; comedy is hard?

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

- It was 20th-century American singer and songwriter Bobbie Gentry who made the following sage observation: “Euphemism is a euphemism for lying.”
- In a match between a 200-pound mountain lion and a 20-pound porcupine, the lion is likely to be the loser – and probably will die if it tried to take a bite of the desired prey.
- The next time you’re annoyed by a bad case of the hiccups, consider poor Charles Osborne. In 1922, when he was 28 years old, Mr. Osborne got the hiccups. For the next 68 years, he continued to hiccup, finally stopping in 1990, one year before his death at the age of 97.
- Marilyn Monroe’s iconic film “Some Like It Hot” (which in 2000 was named the greatest American comedy film of all time by the American Film Institute) originally was titled “Not Tonight, Josephine!”
- At one time the Catholic Church considered it sinful to eat a hot dog.
- For a nation based on a foundation of democracy, the U.S. certainly has a lot of states (that were originally colonies, of course) named for British royalty or nobility. The state of Virginia, for instance, was named for Queen Elizabeth I, known as the “Virgin Queen”; and Georgia was named in honor of King George II. King Charles II got both North and South Carolina, while the Duke of York and Albany – later King James II – was honored when the state of New York was named. Even France got in on the action: When explorer Robert de la Salle claimed a large chunk of territory for France in 1682, he named it Louisiana, after King Louis XIV.

San Elizario ISD implements new security door system

By Hector Gonzalez
Special to the Courier

SAN ELIZARIO, TX – The San Elizario Independent School District (SEISD) has implemented a new camera system at the main entrances of Lorenzo G. Loya Primary and Josefa L. Sambrano Elementary. These new security measures are part of the district’s continued efforts to keep students safe and secure at all times.

The system is called “Secure Door Access” and it will require all visitors to buzz-in at the school’s main entrance and identify themselves before having access to the interior of the school.

“The purpose of this system is to provide our campuses with an extra layer to our already secured perimeter by incorporating technology,” said Horacio Hernandez, Technology Director at SEISD.

Once visitors buzz-in and the school’s office staff sees who is at the door through a TV monitor, they will then unlock the door remotely from the office. However, all visitors will need to be carrying their ID at the time of their visit.

“Safeguarding the well-being of all students and staff is paramount at our school,” said George Augustain, Principal at Lorenzo G. Loya Primary. “Our parents have expressed they are appreciative of the extra precautions our school has taken to ensure the safety of

Something must change in the Dallas Cowboys camp

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

One of the virtues of life is having the ability to remain patient even though everything is falling apart around you. To stay calm amid utter turmoil is something the average person just cannot do. But one person is doing just that; he’s keeping things just the way they are, refusing to react negatively to the situation. So you would think this kind of patience would be greeted with all kinds of praise. The truth is, the patience on display is being scrutinized and questioned by many in the sports community – and with good reason. Dallas Cowboys’ owner Jerry Jones has seen his team go from a contender in the NFC East, to a squad that is already looking for better things next season. And yet, he’s decided to do nothing about his head coach. The fact that coach Jason Garrett is still leading the Cowboys has some scratching their heads. Garrett, who is now in his ninth season as the head coach of the Cowboys, has long been criticized for leading the team to complete mediocrity. If this were the Detroit Lions or Cleveland Browns or Buffalo Bills or Tampa Bay Bucs, I could see it – but these are the Dallas Cowboys! Big D is where players go to win championships. Well, I guess it used to be. Oh, there are seasons when the Cowboys surprise everyone and put up 12 or 13 wins. But those seasons end quickly with an opening-round loss in the playoffs. A lot of fans and sports pundits were calling for Garrett’s firing after the Cowboys’ lack-luster home-field performance against the Tennessee Titans a couple weeks ago. With the inexplicable loss, the Cowboys fell to 3-5 on the season and are pretty much out of the playoff hunt for 2018. But Garrett, who is beginning to resemble John Gotti at the height of his “Teflon Don” fame, has become in a sense, “untouchable.” His Cowboys rebounded to upset the Eagles last Sunday night to put all this “get rid of the guy” talk – even though their last series gave the Eagles an opening – aside for at least another week. But is there any doubt that the Cowboys will respond with another disappointing performance next week. Under Garrett, that’s always been the case. I can’t mention how many fans tell me they get so frustrated every time Garrett slaps a player on the butt who’s just made a monumental mental mistake. I’ve never seen Garrett get mad at one of his players. Sometimes you have to get in a player’s face to get him to respond. But no matter what the mistake, no matter how much it impacts the game, no matter if it even costs the Cowboys the game; Garrett will give the player a hug, a hand clap, and wish him well the next time he goes on the field. These are not his kids; these are grown men who need to be called out if they make a dumb mistake or have any sideline meltdowns. The Cowboys’ offense has deteriorated into a 1070s four-yards-and-a-cloud-of-artificial turf type of rushing game.

When they throw the ball, it’s usually for no more than five yards down the field. While the rest of the NFL is sprinting up and down the field, the Cowboys are moving at a snail’s pace. Jerry Jones has either got to revamp the entire coaching structure or just keep expecting to finish in the middle of the pack every year. One of the hallmarks of a consistent winner is just that – consistency. That’s one thing the Cowboys have lacked for a decade under Garrett. One week they’ll upset the Eagles in Philly, the next week they fall to the Titans at home. Gee, I wonder if that’s why they keep winning in New England. I’ve never seen Bill Belichick clap gleefully on the sidelines or slap one of his players on the butt as they’re coming off the field. No one likes to see anyone lose a job. But let’s face it, these guys make millions of dollars every year so it’s not like Uncle Frank being laid off from the post office. Then after Garrett, we can take a look at the rich General Manager!

Vote

County voters preferred Miguel Suazo with 66.79% of the votes over George P. Bush* who got 29.75% of the votes. In the State Representative District 75 election, Democrat Mary Gonzalez will keep her seat after running unopposed in this election cycle. The same goes for three other state representative offices. Democrats – Cesar J. Blanco, District 76; Evelina ‘Lina’

Ortega, District 77; and Joe C. Pickett, District 79 – ran unopposed, thus all winning their re-election bids. Another Democrat, however, Joe Moody* received 65.20% of the votes to overcome challenger Jeffery Lane at 34.80% to keep his District 78 position. The new county judge for El Paso is Ricardo Samaniego, a Democrat who drew no opponent. He will take over duties from interim County Judge Ruben Vogt, who served Veronica Escobar’s one-year un-expired term. Two county Democrats attracted no challengers in this election. Delia Briones will keep her El Paso County Clerk job and County Commissioner 2 David Stout will retain his seat. In the County Commissioner 4 race, Democrat Carl Robinson upset incumbent Andrew Haggerty, a Republican. Robinson received 57.96% of the votes and Haggerty got 42.04%. In the only contested justice of the peace election on the ballot, Stephanie Fietze, the Democrat, got 56.13% of the votes and Republican Ida Gardner got 43.87%.

Was case of ‘bird lung’ an allergy or infection?

DEAR DR. ROACH: I was a very active, healthy 68-year-old until March, when I was hospitalized for two weeks for bilateral pneumonia. I was told by doctors at the hospital that it would take four to six weeks to get my health back. However, I experienced shortness of breath and bouts of coughing for months, and insisted on seeing a specialist three weeks ago. A CT scan and bronchoscopy showed symptoms typical of bird lung. We had a cockatiel for 17 years! I am now taking prednisone and ibuprofen, which are helping to clear up the inflammation. I hope to be able to return to work soon. My family doctor and several other doctors I know said that they’d studied this at med school but had never seen it in their practices. I hope this serves as a warning to other people who might be tempted to buy a pet bird or to breed them. I was lucky, but someone in poor health might not have survived the deadly combination of pneumonia and bird lung.

“Bird lung” is a term that might refer to either of two possibilities. The first condition is “bird-fanciers lung” – essentially an allergic reaction to bird droppings, feathers and the proteins of various birds. It can look very much like pneumonia, with abnormal chest X-ray findings that can be indistinguishable. The only cure is to get away from the source of the allergens, but prednisone might be necessary in severe cases. It is not an infection.

The second possibility is an infection called psittacosis (sit-a-CO-sis), caused by the bacterium Chlamydia psittaci. Cockatiels are commonly infected by this organism, and the birds do not always appear ill. Psittacosis can be a very severe illness, potentially affecting multiple systems, but it usually responds rapidly to appropriate antibiotics, such as tetracyclines.

Given your history, I suspect that bird-fancier’s lung, also called hypersensitivity pneumonitis, is more likely. It sounds like your specialist is treating you appropriately.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I read that microwaving food can cause the food to lose nutritional value or even to become carcinogenic. Is this true? – S.G.

Not really. Heating food does cause some nutrients, such as vitamin C, to break down. But microwaves don't do that more than any other cooking method does. In general, the longer a food is kept very hot, the more nutrients are lost. So quick heating keeps in the most nutrients. Quickly steaming is another way. That's essentially what a microwave does, since it heats water molecules very efficiently, steaming the water contained in food or that you use to rinse it. In fact, microwaving may be better than boiling, since many nutrients can be lost in the water if you just throw it out.

As far as carcinogens (cancer-causing chemicals) go, these are products of very high heat, especially grilling meat. Because microwaves can heat unevenly, some areas of the food can get very hot while others stay cold, which is why it's best, when microwaving, to cook for a short while and allow the heat to distribute itself before heating further or serving.

Still seeking records 45 years after fire

by Freddy Groves

In July 1973 a fire broke out in the National Personnel Records Center in St. Louis. By the time it was finally put out four days later, with the help of firefighters from 42 different jurisdictions, as many as 18 million personnel files were lost, accounting for 80 percent of the Army's records and 75 percent of the Air Force's holdings. Records that weren't burned were soaked by millions of gallons of water. Employees were able to save 6 million records in that soggy condition.

A federal bulletin went out ordering other agencies to cease disposing of any records that might help re-create the lost files. But reconstructing so much information, from military hospitals, Selective Service records, pay vouchers and Department of Veterans Affairs claims, can't replace those millions of lost records.

The biggest problem was how to dry the waterlogged records before mold took hold. McDonnell Douglas stepped up and offered its vacuum-dry process chamber. Thousands of cartons of wet, damaged files were delivered and subjected to freezing and drying in an attempt to save them.

The records lost are from Army personnel discharged Nov. 1, 1912 to Jan. 1, 1960, and Air Force personnel discharged Sept. 25, 1947 to Jan. 1, 1964 with names alphabetically after Hubbard, James E.

If you apply for records on yourself or a relative now and the records were lost, all you might get back is a certificate of service, and that's only if you can supply a lot of information.

Do you have a stack of records in your family files? Consider contacting the records center and asking if they need them. Future generations could benefit from the information you have sitting in a box in the closet. Write to the National Personnel Records Center at 1 Archives Drive, St. Louis, MO 63138.

Unscramble these twelve letter strings to form each into an ordinary word (ex. HAGNEC becomes CHANGE). Prepare to use only ONE word from any marked (♥) letter string as each unscrambles into more than one word (ex. ♥RATHE becomes HATER or EARTH or HEART). Fit each string's word either across or down to knot all twelve strings together.

• "I have two guest bedrooms that hardly get used until holidays. I keep the beds made up, but when I am expecting guests I will usually strip the beds to freshen the sheets and blankets. I toss the sheets into the dryer with a fabric-softener sheet and hang the blanket outside in the sunshine for several hours. It always does the trick, and I don't need to wash linens that are already clean!"

• According to an eBay survey, more than half of Americans (56 percent) have unused smartphones in their home and nearly half (48 percent) have thrown away a smartphone that they no longer use. If you have unused smartphones hanging around, why not offer them up for sale. eBay has a kit to make it easy to value and sell your device, or use other local services, like Facebook's marketplace option or Craigslist. Be sure to factor in shipping or meet in a safe place to conclude your transaction – like a local police substation!

• No time for making scratch dinner rolls for Thanksgiving? Here's a way to make store-bought rolls look and taste delectable: Reserve a small bit of any fresh herbs you used for seasoning your turkey or dressing. Finely chop it. Brush warmed rolls with melted butter, and sprinkle with the finely chopped herbs and some flaked salt.

• It's still not too late to get a flu shot, which is the No. 1 way to avoid getting the flu this season. Here's No. 2: Keep your hands clean and away from your face – that's eyes, nose, ears and mouth.

• Snow flurries got kids down unexpectedly? Give them a little extra traction on their bike tires with the addition of well-spaced zip ties. About 30 per tire, a couple inches apart. Just be sure they're not too tight.
