So wrong... but right

The July 11 issue of the West Texas County Courier carried a Page 1 story with the headline: Canutillo ISD increases pay for 2018-2019 school year. So wrong. The story referred to raises that will begin with the 2019-2020 school year. But the rest of the story was right. The trustees for Canutillo ISD have approved pay raises for all district employees, allocating over $1.3 million for salary increases above Texas requirements.

Ilhan Omar holds America in contempt

Beto O'Rourke, the losing Texas senator candidate who bootstrapped his way into becoming a losing presidential candidate, had a message for refugees who had come to America: Your new country is a hellhole.

The former congressman told a roundtable of refugees and immigrants in Nashville, Tennessee: "This country was founded on white supremacy. And every single institution and structure that we have in this country still reflects the legacy of slavery and segregation and Jim Crow and suppression."

Just in case the newcomers were inclined to believe that they had escaped to the greatest country on Earth, an open, dynamic, generous society that, whatever their struggles now, will afford them opportunities unimaginable back home – Beto was there to tell them of all its sins.

He had made himself into an instrument of woke assimilation.

This is the backdrop of the controversy over Ilhan Omar, the Somali-born left-wing member of Congress whom Donald Trump urged, in particularly noxious tweets, to return to her native country and fix it before presuming to tell us what to do.

It's a mistake, though, to think that Omar is anything other than on her way to total assimilation, only on the terms set out by Beto O'Rourke.

American has two assimilation problems. One is immigrants feeling only a tenuous connection to America, and getting isolated in ethnic enclaves. The other is immigrants like Omar – and some of her second-generation colleagues – assimilating into the America of identity politics and grievance.

They have learned to speak not just English, but the language of oppression. They understand our system (at least no less than the average officeholder), but hold it in low regard. They know our history, as taught by an instructor cribbing from Howard Zinn.

They may be citizens, but they are certainly outraged victims.

According to a profile in The Washington Post, Omar felt betrayal immediately upon getting to America.

"I arrived at the age of 12 and learned that I was the extreme other," she explained to The Post, noting bullying when she was in school in Arlington, Virginia, an affluent Washington, D.C. suburb. "I was black. I was Muslim. I also learned I was extremely poor and that the classless America that my father talked about didn't exist."

Somehow, despite all the depredations, she gained a seat in Congress. Omar doesn't represent a majority-minority district. She started her elected career, as The Post puts it, by getting to know "older peace-and-justice hippies." She attended Black Lives Matter protests, and established relationships with all the left-wing groups in Minneapolis.

Omar's default is to blame America first. She explained that local Somali-Americans attempted to join the Islamic State as a function of "systemic alienation." She contends that she has met American veterans "who say the most horrendous things, who have complete disregard for life." And she accuses her congressional colleagues of singling her out for demonization.

Anyone who thinks these attitudes are alien to America has never been to a college campus or watched MSNBC. In short, whatever foolhardy things Trump may tweet, Ilhan Omar is not suited to return and fix Somalia, rather to join a segment of the American elite.

competition. Last year, ENF awarded more than $2.4 million in college scholarships to about 500 high school seniors nationwide through its prestigious MVS scholarship program. In total, the ENF provided more than $3.6 million in college scholarships as part of its three annual scholarship programs, according to local lodge officials.

MVS scholarships are for students pursuing a four-year degree, on a full-time basis (minimum of 12 semester hours). All scholarships are in the form of certificates of award and conditional upon the full-time enrollment in an accredited U.S. college or university.

“The Elks are investing wisely. MVS scholars- all of whom demonstrate scholarship, leadership and financial need- are graduating from colleges at a rate of nearly 90 percent, about 40 percent higher than the national average,” Teddy Martinez stated. “And, applicants need not be related to a member of the Elks,” she added.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks (BPOE), also known as the Elks Lodge or simply the Elks, is an American fraternal order founded in 1868 originally as a social club in New York City. Today, headquartered at Elks National Veterans Memorial in Chicago, it is one of the leading fraternal orders in the US, claiming more than one million members.

The Elks organization chapters, which are found throughout the country, provide charitable services that help build stronger communities, explained Jesus Martinez, a local 187 Lodge member. As an example, he cited their current programs that offer services for physically handicapped children, provide physical and occupational therapy for veterans, and promote patriotic activities in schools.

The Chicago office of the Elks National Foundation will announce the national scholarship winners in late April 2020. (Many local, district and state Elks associations also award their own scholarships through this program. These scholarships, however, are not to be confused with the 500 Elks National Foundation Most Valuable Student scholarships.)

The 20 top MVS finalists will participate in an all-expenses paid leadership weekend in Chicago during which they’ll interview with the national judges. These 20 finalists will be vying for two first-place awards of $50,000; two second-place awards of $40,000; and two third-place awards of $30,000. The remaining 14 finalists will receive awards of $20,000. The 480 runners-up will receive fifth-place scholarships of $4,000.

Season is nearly here and the Miners are still looking for a QB

By Steve Escajeda
Special to the Courier

I know the temperatures are still hovering around the 100-degree mark and every air conditioner is operating non-stop.

But it's nice to know that the perennial sign of cooler temperatures to come – football – is on the way.

And would you believe that the UTEP football season-opener is just a month away?

That's right, the Miners will host Houston Baptist on Saturday, Aug. 31.

I know many of you are asking the question many others have posed through the centuries – who in the world is Houston Baptist?

Let me tell you.

First of all, the Houston Baptist Huskies wear the exact same colors as the Miners, orange and blue.

With a schedule full of programs like Texas Wesleyan, South Dakota, Texas Southern, Incarnate Word, Abilene Christian and Nicholls, I guess you could call the UTEP Miner game their Super Bowl.

It's the only big school on their schedule so a win in El Paso could make their season.

As for the Miners, the Houston Baptist game should be the most favorable one of the season.

With a similar schedule, the Huskies finished just 1-10 last season and come into the UTEP game riding a 10-game losing streak.

Of course the Miners have won just one of their last 24 games and are coming into the Houston Baptist game on a three-game losing streak.

It may be the only time this season that the Miners will be favored to knock off their opponent.

They'll follow that game with a trip to Lubbock against Texas Tech, then they have Nevada, Southern Miss, UT San Antonio, Florida International, Louisiana Tech and so on.

The season will close with a very late-in-the-year match-up at New Mexico State on Nov. 23, and end at home against Rice on Nov. 30.

UTEP has been named the absolute worst Division 1 football team in the nation the last two years and head coach Dana Dimel has his work cut out for him to avoid a three-peat.

The main reason for worry – the quarterback spot.

It was a done deal that senior-to-be Kai Locksley was going to take over the reins of the team's most important position.

Let's face it, he came to El Paso with a lot of fanfare having been named the Junior College Offensive Player of the Year. But his passing suffered in his first season with the Miners.

He could certainly run with the football; his just didn't throw it very well.

But the thought was that with a year under his belt, he would mature, put in the practice and improve his throwing skills.

Only problem is, he didn't mature, and I don't mean on the field.

His arrest and suspension from the team for DUI, illegal weapon possession and making terrorist threats has been widely reported, though not a lot of news on the subject has followed.

It appears as if the Miners are going forward without him. The only problem is that they have to go forward with the second-string quarterback. The problem is the Miners don't really have an established second-string quarterback.

The Miners are going into preseason training camp looking for a quarterback. And unfortunately, that's what they've been seemingly doing for years now.

The frontrunner appears to be Brandon Jones, who filled in a little bit last season. Jones threw just 85 passes the whole season, with four touchdowns and five interceptions. In his six games he averaged 112 passing yards.

That's It. The other guys listed in the running, Mark Torres and Calvin Brownholtz, didn't attempt a single pass. T.J. Goodwin, who may be the quarterback of the future, was in high school last year.

The Miners picked up a couple of junior college transfer quarterbacks in the last couple weeks. Gavin Hardison out of New Mexico, and Isaiah Bravo from California, have joined the team, but who knows if one of them will emerge.

Dimel was put in a real dilemma when Locksley made his mistakes.

With the quarterback fiasco, if the Miners can pull off four wins this season, Dimel should be named National Coach of the Year.

Okay, okay – I exaggerate – how about a nice contract extension?

Is ‘Beaver Fever’ cause of digestive trouble?

DEAR DR. ROACH: Last summer I went camping and ran out of clean water. I had to boil water and drink it without any treatment tablets. That evening, I had painful cramps in my stomach, and in my upper abdomen, under my ribcage. Since then, my digestion has been horrific. I have constant rank gas and bloating when eating foods I’ve never had a problem with before, even fruits and vegetables. I have been a big eater of probiotic foods, with no digestive disturbances. However, since this incident, any form of probiotic, whether from capsule or natural foods like sauerkraut or kimchi, gives me the worst gas and bloating I’ve ever had. I had parasite and bacterial stool testing done with my doctor, and I came up clear. I feel like I need antibiotics or something to clear whatever is going on with my digestive system, but I’m hesitant because I have had four rounds of antibiotics in 2017 from surgeries. I am worried about “beaver fever.” What do you recommend? – A.L.

There are several infections one can get from drinking unprocessed water while camping. “Beaver fever” is a name for infection from the parasite Giardia lamblia, which is found in water where animals (especially beavers) are found. It’s a reasonable thought – it’s one of the few waterborne infections that can persist for months. However, I think Giardia is unlikely. Symptoms from Giardia normally begin one to two weeks after exposure, and the parasites are killed very rapidly by boiling water.

Your symptoms are very much like irritable bowel syndrome, and I do wonder if it might have been triggered by some event that day you were camping. Usually, three sets of cultures for parasites are done to make sure there isn’t an unwelcome guest in your intestine causing symptoms. A gastroenterologist would be a good choice to help you track down an identifiable cause and to get some symptomatic relief. Antibiotics are not recommended without knowing what you are treating.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Seven years ago, I had a stroke. I was immediately put on Lipitor and Plavix. The statin drugs made my arms and shoulders ache, and the doctor tested me and found no reason for it. He said anecdotally that he had many patients who complained of the same thing. He then put me on fenofibrate. The pain stopped immediately. Now he says new research shows that any cholesterol-lowering drug makes the blood tests show lowered cholesterol levels but it does not prevent heart attack or stroke. So he took me off it. I wonder if you know anything about this study that said there was no benefit to taking statins. I did not really understand what he said. – G.C.

It sounds like the message got a bit confused. The evidence that statin drugs reduce the risk of heart attack and stroke in people at high risk, such as those who have had a previous event, is very strong. However, the evidence for fibrate drugs, such as fenofibrate, is much weaker. Statin drugs often cause some muscle aches. Pravastatin and fluvastatin are least likely to cause this problem, so it's worth a try switching, in my opinion. Some people get relief from muscle aches with a CoQ10 supplement.

Thefts of... everything

by Freddy Groves

We've seen these stories before: a Department of Veterans Affairs employee finally gets caught stealing drugs. Usually this happens in a VA hospital, but not always. Recently, a former chief pharmacist at a veterans care home admitted that he stole 12,000 doses of various opioids and tampered with the electronic and manual prescription logs to cover it up. And how long will he stay in the slammer? It's likely to only be four years.

There are problems in veterans care homes, but it isn't always drugs that are taken. Sometimes it's cash. In one care home, the receptionist was charged with stealing $8,000 in pre-purchased meal money and then fixing the books. It turns out this receptionist was a convicted felon and had stolen $60,000 from a previous employer, a fact that never showed up in a background check.

At another VA nursing home, an assistant administrator got hold of a veteran's ATM card and checkbook and used it as his own personal piggy bank.

A fiduciary, responsible for managing a veteran's money, misdirected $71,000 of a veteran's assets and kept collecting after the veteran had gone into a veterans' care home.

A registered nurse at another veterans' care home brazenly stole money. At yet another veteran home, two people were charged with stealing donated money that was to be used for an event for the residents.

Sometimes, though, it's not drugs or cash. Sometimes it's medals. That's when it gets personal. A 96-year-old veteran had his Legion d'Honneur medal, France's highest decoration (given to him by the French consul general for his efforts on D-Day) stolen from a bedside drawer. The veteran's job during the war in France was to mark minefields. I'm glad to report that the veteran's nephew managed to get him a replacement medal from France.

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom).
